SOME FOREIGN MILITARY PUBLICATIONS.

LES ARCHIVES DE LA GRAND GUERRE.

The first number of this monthly publication, price 3 francs each or 30 francs per annum, appeared in March, 1919.

Its programme, as announced then, is "to collect, classify and publish the principal French and foreign documents relating to the history of the War, whether military, political, social, economic, etc. . . . Its principal object is to permit eyewitnesses and combatants to recall the events through which they have lived, and which life in the trenches or billets has not allowed them to sort out and write about."

REVUE MILITAIRE GENERALE.

This important monthly recommenced publication last September. In a short preface the Editor points out that 1870-1 was the result of a failure to study things military and lack of a military literature; the victory of 1918 was due to the better instruction of the Army particularly by such educators as Generals Lewal, Philibert, Maillard, Lanrezac, de La Croix (the late Editor of the Magazine), Langlois, Foch, Bonnal, and Pétain. In order that military experience may not be lost, the pages of the Revue will be open to all combatants who have anything interesting to say. The price is 3 francs a number.
